"Celebration of the Animals"!

Who: You and your pets. There will be many animals and children at this event, so please only bring pets that are friendly and healthy. All animals must be on a leash or in a carrier and be current on vaccinations. Children must be accompanied by their parents. If there is any question about whether an animal is appropriate to bring, please call the Har HaShem office.

What: A special service celebrating animals

When: Sunday, October 24th, 1:15 p.m.

Where: Congregation Har HaShem, outside the front entrance

Why: Creation as a whole has its own integrity and holiness, and so too does each species. There is great breadth and depth in the Jewish tradition's perspective on humankind's relationship to and responsibility for Creation. Our tradition calls each and every one of us to infuse each and every action with holiness, reverence, respect, and love. This service will remind us of our special relationship with, and responsibility for, not only the animals in our homes, but throughout the world. Please join us for this unique and extraordinary occasion.

"Praise God, sun and moon, praise God, all bright stars...! Praise Adonai, all who are on the earth, all sea monsters and ocean depths, ... All mountains and hills, all fruit trees and cedars, all wild and tamed beasts, creeping things and winged birds, all monarch and peoples of the earth!" (Psalm 148: 1-11)
