

July 10, 2024

Dear President Biden, Administrator Regan and Members of Congress,

We write to you as a collective voice of leaders and pastors in the Black church who are committed to work for justice. Our faith demands that we raise our voices to thank you for the many ways you have protected our communities from environmental harm and to urge you to take continued strong and bold action on pollution.

The public health and environmental impacts of pollution that comes from fossil-fuel-fired power plants and cars have long hurt Black communities in America first and worst. Black communities face a 54 percent higher burden from air pollution compared to the overall population. One million of Black Americans live within a half-mile of natural gas facilities; over one million face a cancer risk from pollutants higher than EPA's level of concern, and approximately 13.4 percent of Black children suffer from pollution related asthma as compared to 7 percent of White children. The statistics are not mere numbers but narratives of suffering: they are children, families, and entire communities who are bearing the worst of the costs of pollution.

We commend the Biden Administration's past work to confront these human and environmental injustices. Passing the Inflation Reduction Act, committing to the Justice40 Initiative, and enacting stricter regulations through the updated soot and methane standards, as well as finalizing the Good Neighbor Rule and putting in place clean transportation and power plant regulations were all important steps forward.

As custodians of God's creation and champions of justice, we implore the Biden Administration to press onward in its quest to protect clean air and water and for Congress to fully support these important EPA rules. With human health on the line, particularly in Black and Brown communities, your actions must reflect the urgency of this moment and the gravity of our collective moral responsibility. The EPA must implement robust pollution and air quality standards and Congress must abide by these standards, ensuring that the breath of life flows freely through every community.

Sincerely,
