

December 4, 2024

Dear President Biden and Members of Congress:

As leaders in the Black church, we urge you to cement your legacy as a champion for racial justice and healing by lifting up and honoring the full story of Black American history through the National Park Service. We ask you to use your power to designate national monuments that tell the story of both Black Wall Street and the Rosenwald Schools. Together, these stories embody and honor the agency and resilience of Black communities in the face of racism and segregation.

The Rosenwald Schools, totaling nearly 5,000 in the South, are a testament to the power of partnership. During the Jim Crow era, Julius Rosenwald, the son of German Jewish immigrants, and Booker T. Washington worked together with local Black communities to create state-of-the-art schools to provide Black children the education they deserved. Congressman John Lewis, Medgar Evers, Maya Angelou are among the many inspiring graduates, evidence that investments in communities of color pay enormous dividends to our country. A Julius Rosenwald and the Rosenwald Schools national monument would recognize the profound resilience, agency, and fortitude of Black communities and be the first national monument to honor a Jewish leader.

We also join the chorus of voices calling for a national monument in Tulsa, Oklahoma, that preserves the memory of Black Wall Street and the horrors that occurred there in 1921. Our country must not forget the approximately 300 men and women who were murdered for no other reason than the color of their skin. We cannot forget the people who made up the thriving, vibrant community which was burned to the ground. And we cannot forget how, even in the face of this atrocity, the Black community of Tulsa showcased their resilience in the rebuilding efforts immediately after the massacre, refusing to let hatred and violence have the final word. A national monument that acknowledges our nation's painful past will help to pave a path towards reconciliation and healing.

We are called, as people of faith, to look back and confront the wickedness of the past as we hope for a future of justice, peace and liberation. Regardless of our race, religion or heritage, these stories of courage, conviction, and fortitude are reflections of each of us. National monuments dedicated to the story of Black Wall Street and the Rosenwald Schools would document a central theme in our larger story as people of God—a journey for justice.

Stewardship of our national public lands and preservation of our historic and cultural heritage is an important part of our responsibility as caretakers of our heritage for the next generation. Our responsibility to care for God's Creation is coupled with our duty to preserve and honor the full story of America and ensure all children have equitable access to healthy recreation and the opportunity to find their own story within our national parks.

Sincerely,
