

The American faith community applauds the new Clean Water Rule

As faith leaders, we recognize the key role that clean water plays in our religious and secular life.

By again protecting the sources of our drinking water and critical wildlife habitat, we honor and safeguard God's creation and ensure clean water for all of our families, communities, and future generations.

Paid for by the National Religious Partnership for the Environment